ABOUT THE WORKSHOP. Exploring functional communication between therapist and client to enhance the therapeutic relationship and influence effective therapy.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR. Suzanne Kurtz is a Clinical Professor and Director of Clinical Communication at Washington State University, College of Veterinary Medicine. She works to improve communication practices in health care and education and to develop evidence-based curricula and methods for teaching, learning, and evaluating communication skills. She bridges diverse cultures and disciplines to collaborate on communication program development, team building, and conflict management in education, medicine, law, and business.

She is Professor Emerita at the University of Calgary in Alberta, where she directed the undergraduate communication curriculum in the Faculty of Medicine. She has served as a visiting consultant and scholar at institutions worldwide. Suzanne has co-authored books on communication skills in the medical arena that have earned widespread recognition. Her many articles include topics of participatory education and participatory development.
